10	About & Outcome	During the COVID-19 pandemic, violence against women and girls (VAWG) saw a significant increase globally. Lockdown measures confined victims to their homes with abusers, leading to spikes in domestic violence and intimate partner violence. For instance, countries like France and Argentina reported substantial rises in domestic violence incidents. The psychological impact was profound, with heightened levels of anxiety, depression, and trauma among victims. Financial dependence on abusers increased as women faced job losses and economic instability. In response, some governments and organizations implemented emergency measures such as new hotlines and online support platforms. Public awareness campaigns were launched to inform victims of available resources. Overall, the COVID-19 pandemic underscored the urgent need for comprehensive strategies to combat violence against women and girls, especially in times of crisis.
